===== Hyrax Torrent Download is a small program that allows you to quickly and efficiently copy data from one device to another. As far as user interface is concerned, Hyrax features a tray icon. That said, Hyrax does feature three hotkeys, allowing you to conveniently copy text, images, audio tracks and various files from one device to another. Moreover, Hyrax provides three preset hot keys: one to send content to a server and another two for receiving content. Please note that the program cannot be used by multiple users at the same time, meaning that you cannot have two Hyrax running at the same time. History of the README file

Click here to get free download from the software library I've tried one of the answers Get latest copy of Hyrax: Desktop version, Server version or both? I'm not able to download the server version through links provided by the answer It doesn't work for me. A: You can simply use Windows PowerShell for sharing your files. You can share a file, folder or even a list of files from a remote server using the 'Copy-Item' cmdlet. Q: How do I get POST data in Ruby on Rails? I am currently working on making an ajax-enabled page that uses a selection list to dynamically update a form. Ideally I would like to make an ajax call to the server with a list of IDs for the last selection on the list. As of now, I can post the the form data with ruby like so: def update #if I have a route to this controller? # params[:name] @name = params[:name] #end if #... more stuff happens end Is there a way to access the ID list in a similar way? I know I could just put a hidden field in the form and then use JQuery to get the value, but I would rather not have to duplicate the form. A: There is no direct equivalent in Rails 3 for params[:id]. However, the easiest way to do what you are wanting is to use a FormHelper. You can make a form with a hidden input field for each element to be selected. When the user submits this form with a submit button, you'll be able to get all of the information from the form using something like this: params = {:id => @user.id} @names = params[:names] @latitudes = params[:latitudes] @longitudes = params[:longitudes] Then you can just change your controller to accept a JSON with an array of IDs of the elements to be selected.
